

As women in this community come together, we are able to empower one another and extend the kingdom of God as a unit. But before that we must first acknowledge that we all fall short in multiple aspects of our lives. The world blinds us with distorted values and expectations; we get caught up in the thought of females with “perfect body shape” or couples who have “#relationshipgoals” on social media and among our peers. We often neglect to remember that God has created us unique. We are all beautiful, yet weak, like jars of clay that only He can mold perfectly.

*“But this treasure in jars of clay to show that this all-surpassing power is from God not from us.”
- 2 Corinthians 4:7*

Women’s group itself is a clay jar. It is the beautiful treasures in it that makes it what it is. The women in this ministry are the treasure, but we are also clay jars as individuals. We are vulnerable, different, but beautifully created in the image of God. Therefore I want women’s group to be a place where women can come as we are, and embrace our identity as a woman of God and how he has made us.

I believe that when women of God come together, our intimacy allows us to reveal our inner self because we share this special feminine identity. Women’s group will be a safe place where brokenness and transparency takes place, such that we experience spiritual growth together. We will be exploring and reflecting on themes of self and relational struggles throughout the year. Together, we share; we pray; we find strength in Him.
